this, because this allows them to comply. These are compliant, law-abiding people. It allows them to comply and do their work with all the modern technology available to do it. I under...I think we all understand the benefits of uniformity. It's when we go into it in 2004, as written, or if we extend the date, what can we expect? What's the new revenue, what's the potential loss of revenue, that sort of thing. Can you do that, please?

SENATOR LANDIS: I can only do part of that equation. To the best of our ability to understand the implications as far as tax base, there will be no loss in our tax base. The Tax Commissioner told us that what the Streamlined Project, how we define things and all the work that's in there, does not implicate existing Nebraska tax law. So if our tax law was to remain what it is and we went into this system, we would not move something that we taxed into a not-taxed status. Our exemptions would not be overturned or overruled. Our tax base would remain the same. What would we gain? That is a risky proposition. What is there to be gained? Some place between 40 and 200 million bucks. How much? Don't know. Do know that large, major retailers were at the table, and if you put in a Wal-Mart and a JCPenney and, you know, and a Cabela's and others, I think you're talking substantial money. But I would be remiss if I put a number on it, because it's much closer to voodoo than it is to mathematics at this point. I mean it's a good intention and a good idea, but to put a number on it would be foolhardy and I can't. I can say that from what we know, there isn't a loss of revenue, because we don't change our tax base.

SENATOR BRASHEAR: Okay. Thank you. Senator Landis, I'd also like to ask you, if I might, and I know we don't make deals in the Legislature, but can you give us some sort of a forecast? This is up early in the session. It's on General File.

SENATOR LANDIS: Yeah.

SENATOR BRASHEAR: I think we should move it to Select File and preserve all our options and continue to talk about it. Are you trying to fast-track it?
